artoberVA Launches 2016 Calendar

The calendar will serve as a hub for all events relating to the first annual month-long celebration of arts and culture for the Richmond and Tri-Cities Region of Virginia.

RICHMOND, VA, August 23, 2016 – CultureWorks is announcing the launch of the online calendar for artoberVA. The calendar is a key feature of artoberVA, promoting programs, events and performances. With the calendar, local organizations and artists can easily add their events, and the public can just as easily find engaging experiences throughout the month of October, in conjunction with National Arts and Humanities Month.

This past June, CultureWorks announced the first annual artoberVA, a joint effort from local businesses, organizations, and artists with the intent of increasing awareness of the Richmond and Tri-Cities Region's thriving arts and culture community.

Users can find the calendar at <http://artoberVA.com/october-2016/> and choose between the graphically stimulating grid view or the minimalist list view. From there, it's just a matter of perusing the listings for all of the arts and culture treats that artoberVA will have to offer, or users can choose to search by date, category, or keyword. And for businesses, organizations, and artists, instructions for entering events can be found in the Community Partner Toolkit.

In the coming months, look for updates on everything going on in the Richmond and Tri-Cities Region arts and culture community. Make sure you don't miss anything by signing up for the newsletter, following artoberVA on Twitter, liking artoberVA on Facebook, and following artoberVA on Instagram.
